Division of Student Affairs

The mission of Student Affairs is to cultivate a healthy and supportive campus environment that engages students, advances learning, encourages leadership and prepares students for future success. Student Affairs is comprised of the following departments, programs and services that support students both inside and outside the classroom.

Office of Student Conduct

The Office of Student Conduct is responsible for addressing non-academic violations of university policy through the Code of Student Conduct. The office provides a fair, impartial and educational student conduct process for students and student organizations, as well as involved parties, charged and associated with violations. Additionally, dean's certifications requests are processed and completed by the Office of Student Conduct.

Office of Student Involvement

Getting involved with a campus organization is a great way for you to meet others with similar interests and it also serves as a learning tool to build your co-curricular transcript and skills that future employers seek. All student organizations are designed to maximize and enhance the Auburn experience building on the academic knowledge you will learn in the classroom. The Office of Student Involvement is home to more than 500 student organizations on campus which are divided among the four branches of the office: Service Programs, Student Governance, Student Programming and Student Organizations.
The Service Programs branch provides opportunities for you to serve the local community and other areas through service projects. In this area you will find programs like AU Dance Marathon, Alternative Student Breaks, The Big Event and many more. Jump in with service programs to engage with the community in an area that you are passionate about.

The Student Governance branch is home to the Student Government Association or SGA. SGA is also constantly working with administrators on campus to ensure that the students’ needs are being met while also providing fun programming activities for all students to attend like Hey Day and Homecoming. SGA implemented a feedback system called Auburn Answers that students can submit their concerns through regarding anything on campus; a student serving in SGA will relay that concern to an administrator and work to resolve the problem.

The Student Programming branch houses University Program Council, known around campus as UPC. UPC is a student-led programming board that works to bring a variety of events to campus for students to enjoy. Some of the most popular events are Tiger Nights, Open Mic Night, and our spring concert “Auburn Airwaves.” All UPC events are free to students and provide different opportunities to experience something unique.

The Student Organizations branch is home to more than 500 student-run organizations on campus. These organizations range from honors and academic groups to special interests to cultural groups. If there is an organization that we don’t offer, then you can start that group on campus. You can find a full listing of organizations and build a profile to assist in finding organizations and events that fit their interests by logging on to www.auburn.edu/auinvolve. The Involvement Ambassadors are available to serve as a resource for any student or student organization seeking assistance in finding opportunities for involvement. The Involvement Ambassadors provide one-on-one consultations with students as well as conduct workshops for larger groups. Students may drop in to meet with an Involvement Ambassador Monday – Friday from 10 a.m. – 2 p.m. in Student Center suite 3130.
