Division of Student Affairs

The mission of Student Affairs is to cultivate a healthy and supportive campus environment that engages students, advances learning, encourages leadership and prepares students for future success. Student Affairs is comprised of the following departments, programs and services that support students both inside and outside the classroom.

Office of Student Conduct
The Office of Student Conduct is responsible for addressing non-academic violations of university policy through the Code of Student Discipline. The office provides a fair, impartial and educational student conduct process for students and student organizations, as well as involved parties, charged and associated with violations. Additionally, dean's certifications requests are processed and completed by the Office of Student Conduct.

Office of Student Involvement
The Office of Student Involvement is home to four Student Activity Portfolios: Leadership and Service, Student Organizations, Student Governance, and Student Programming; which, combined, offer 500 organizations to students. All student organizations are designed to maximize and enhance the Auburn experience building on the academic knowledge students learn in the classroom. These organizations are a great way for students to meet others with similar interests and serve as a learning tool to build co-curricular transcripts and soft skills that future employers seek.
Leadership & Service
Leadership & Service is the central resource for opportunities for students seeking to become better leaders and student volunteer opportunities and community service. Freshman Leadership Programs and Leadership Small Groups focus on developing leadership in first-year students. The Signature Leadership Series, Spring-Up, and The LeaderShape Institute are programs designed to help participants become future leaders on campus and beyond. Service opportunities are available on campus, in the Auburn and Opelika community, domestically and internationally. Several programs help students to achieve their goals of serving their community, including Alternative Student Breaks, Auburn University Dance Marathon, Beat Bama Food Drive and IMPACT.

Student Organizations
Student Organizations, located within the Office of Student Involvement, provide opportunities for students to get involved with more than 500 registered student organizations. Student organizations are designed to maximize and enhance the Auburn experience. Students can log on to auburn.edu/auinvolve to find a full list of organizations and build a profile to assist in finding organizations and events that meet their interests. The Involvement Ambassadors also serve as a resource for any student or existing and potential student organizations seeking assistance in finding opportunities for involvement.

Welcome Week
Welcome Week occurs during the first week of fall classes and provides students with the opportunity to attend more than 125 free events, meet new friends and learn more about many different campus departments.

Black Student Union
The mission of the Black Student Union is to represent the interests and concerns of all black students at Auburn University, bring together all aspects of black student life for the purpose of improving the campus environment, provide support for the students and the community, promote interaction and good relationships among black students and other Auburn students, by encouraging pluralism on the part of the faculty, administration and the student body at large.

International Student Organization
The International Student Organization is a student organization created to improve multinational understanding and promote relationships between people of different cultures. The International Student Organization also helps ease the process of adaptation for international students. The organization actively promotes diversity and beneficial interaction between international and domestic students.

Student Government Association
Upon enrollment at Auburn University, each student becomes a member of the Student Government Association, the official organization of the student body. Their mission is serving and promoting the individual student; unifying all that is Auburn. The association is the voice of the students, promoting cooperation and communication with the faculty, administration, the Auburn City Council and the state legislature. The Student Government Association is organized into three branches—executive, legislative, and
The Student Government Association Constitution and Code of Laws, published on the Student Government Association website, detail the guidelines by which the Student Government Association functions.
